Bruno Hoen is a professor of Infectious Diseases and Tropical Medicine and the Head of the Department of Infectious Diseases, Internal Medicine, and Dermatology, at the University of French West Indies at Pointe-à-Pitre, Guadeloupe. He graduated as an MD and a PhD at the University of Nancy, France, and specialized in Internal Medicine, Nephrology, and Intensive Care. His clinical research activities include infective endocarditis, bacterial infections in chronic dialysis patients, and HIV infection, especially primary HIV infection. He is the chairman of the International Society of Cardiovascular Infectious Diseases.